Introduction

The children can work individually or in pairs to carry out research on the poppy flower and its origins as a symbol of Remembrance by using the prompt questions as their research basis.

With their findings they will then create a PowerPoint with facts and pictures which they will then present to their class. Children will present their findings and PowerPoints to class mates or the wider school community through an assembly. This should be done around Remembrance Day.

Poppy Research & Presentation Challenge

The Challenge

The Task

In order to inform a wider audience of the purpose of the poppy flower in relation to the work of Poppyscotland, your challenge is to produce a PowerPoint presentation which will be informative for a diverse audience from young children to adults.

You will need to access the internet and make notes on relevant facts which you will then use to create your individual PowerPoint presentation. Here are some questions which may guide your research:

- Where does the poppy originally come from?
- What type of poppy is associated with Remembrance?
- Why has the poppy become the symbol of Remembrance?
- Where are Flanders Fields?
- Why are poppies associated with Flanders Fields?
- Who produces the poppies for Remembrance in Scotland?
- How do they make the individual poppies and wreaths?

On completion of your presentation be prepared to present it to your class.
